Morse, Storen and Walker to provide D.C. area students with an unforgettable day at the ballpark

Washington, D.C., Wednesday, July 7, 2010 — Prior to this evening's game at Nationals Park, Nationals players Mike Morse, Drew Storen and Tyler Walker will provide everlasting memories to a group of 50 children from Loudoun Homeless Services Center as the Major League Baseball Players Trust's "Buses for Baseball" program motors into Washington.

Loudoun Homeless Services Center is an innovative and comprehensive facility dedicated to serving the needs of the homeless in Loudoun County. The Center operates a 24-bed emergency shelter for families and single women in Loudoun County, as well as the Loudoun Transitional Housing Program, a 44-bed transitional housing program that provides a safe, supportive residential environment to families and singles. Additional services include an 18-bed emergency cold weather shelter and a drop-in center offering day support for homeless individuals.

Courtesy of the players' charitable foundation, the children will receive round-trip transportation to the game, meet the players, and receive free tickets, food, beverages and souvenirs.

This season, "Buses for Baseball" will provide transportation and personal greetings for more than 1,500 underprivileged children attending Major League Baseball games as invited guests of their big league heroes. "Buses for Baseball" will provide many of the children with their first chance to attend a Major League Baseball game.

The Players Trust enjoys support from the Washington Nationals organization in providing this unique, up close and personal opportunity to share the thrill of Major League Baseball with those less fortunate.
